National Museum Treasure

Drinks in the Sky

One of the most important buildings in Prague has been listed as part of its national heritage. Loved by Czech nationals, admired by foreign visitors, and deeply linked to modern Czech history.

Today the building serves as National Museum, the biggest museum in Czech Republic. Large reconstruction was recently completed. The building was re-opened on 28th October 2018, the day of 100th anniversary of Czechoslovakia.

After the visit of the Pantheon premises, the guests will have the possibility to admire the beautiful view and have a drink in the glass dome, located at the very top of the National Museum.

Wine tradition on the castle doorsteps

Czech wine tasting

Who would believe that just below Prague Castle you would find one of the most ancient vineyards in the region?!

Discover the St Wenceslas Vineyard with beautiful views over the 100 towers of Prague.

Local wine makers will tell you the secrets of wine producing in the city.

Put your taste to the test and find out which wines are the best.

Unexpected visit

Sculptures on the move in Bílek's atelier.

This villa atelier in Prague's Castle District was built by František Bílek from 1910–1911 according to his own design. The building's architecture is very carefully thought out. It symbolizes a wheat field and demonstrates the author's convictions regarding the relationships and analogies between nature and artistic creation.

The private visit of the villa will be exclusive by linking the venue and exhibition with live sculptures represented by the famous Czech Losers Cirque Company.

The Dark history

Secret of the hotel Jalta's underground

Guests will be taken to the Jalta Bunker, located in the basement of the hotel.

The bunker was built for senior Czech leaders and officers of the Warsaw Pact. Until 1989, it was the headquarters of the STB secret police, notorious for 'bugging' western guests of the hotel from ten metres (32 ft) below ground.

A step back into the dark years of the occupation era.

Original Beer Spa

UNTRADITIONAL RELAXATION

A unique concept that brings a refreshing look at the spa experience.

Enjoy perfect relaxation in huge handmade oak vats filled with natural extracts used to brew Czech beer. Vitamins and enzymes naturally present in brewer's yeast will help you regenerate your skin, remove harmful substances from your body and relieve fatigue and stress in the most pleasant way.

And great beer must not be missed!
