EXCLUSIVE MARIA THERESIA TOUR

Moreover, the tour includes Maria Theresa's most important state rooms on the bel étage: the Great and Small Galleries, the Carousel Room and Hall of Ceremonies. The Great and Small Galleries are counted among the most resplendent banqueting halls of European Rococo, with their gloss-painted white walls, their opulent gold decorations, and the ceiling frescoes by the Italian painter Gregorio Guglielmi.

What is more, the Carousel Room and the Hall of Ceremonies – likewise in the typical white-and-gold decoration typical of Maria Theresa's epoch – have large-format paintings integrated in the wall panelling which document Maria Theresa's reign in remarkably exact detail.

The "Eisriesenwelt" is a cave labyrinth with a total length of more than 40 kilometers. It was created over a very long time period. The first cracks and fissures in the limestone caves began to form during tectonic elevations about 100 million years ago. Chemical dissolution processes and water erosion across the millennia caused the subterranean cracks to increase, leading to the development of immense hollow spaces.

Alpine caves are in a development process even today, even if many cave systems - including large sections of the "Eisriesenwelt" are no longer changing significantly due to dehydration.
